“Stewardship and Value in Oncology: Are We Choosing Wisely in Managing Breast Cancer?”

Friday, January 13, 2017 8:00 – 9:00am
Rieveschl Auditorium Vontz Center for Molecular Studies

Objective:
1. Understand the rationale for physicians’ duty to serve as stewards of society’s resources.
2. Discuss and Review the evidence supporting less burdensome approaches to breast radiation therapy and the uptake of these approaches.
3. Appreciate why there has been a recent increase in the use of aggressive surgical approaches in the management of breast cancer.
